Klan Wizard Released at Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — Robert M. Shelton of Tusculoosa, Ala., Imperial wizard of the United Klans of America, was released from federal prison today after serving nine months of his one-year sentence for contempt of Congress.
The early release was because of good behavior. He had been denied a parole last June. He was convicted Feb. 14 of contempt when he refused to produce a KKK membership list for a congressional committee.

Shelton, 40, left here shortly before noon by automobile for Tusculoosa where he said he would begin making plans for a nationwide crusade for the KKK and muster a "fight against Communist forces working behind the scenes in America."
He said his crusade would appeal to Anglo-Saxons, Nordic and other such races that he said were the "silent majority in this country."

Shelton said at a news conference that the government had segregated him because the government had not asked the "Black Panthers, Communist party or other militant groups" to release their membership files to Congress.

He said he would work 36 hours a day to spread his organization's message throughout the nation. He refuted charges that the Klan movement is dead. He said more and more people were asking about becoming members.

Shelton said his treatment at the prison was fair and he had no complaints. He said, though, that Black Panther and other militant groups were allowed to function within the scope of the prison. He said the penal system was a "breeding place for future crimes."

The medium security prison here had 540 prisoners.

let stand today the conviction of four University of Kentucky student protesters who blocked a university office in which the Defense Intelligence Agency was holding recruiting interviews.

Justice William O. Douglas, alone, favored hearing the four protesters and their attack on the state's breach-of-peace law.

The court majority, consisting of all the other justices, said in explaining their action only that the appeal had been dismissed "for want of jurisdiction."

This means the majority felt the issue was not one that the court could properly consider.

The four students, Dan Sheridan O'Leary III, William Murrell, Kristina Lewis and Robert A. Wood, were arrested by campus police in 1967 for refusing to leave the doorway of a university office in which the Defense Intelligence Agency was holding recruiting interviews.

They were fined $75 on conviction and Kentucky courts dismissed their claims that the law was unconstitutionally vague and ambiguous.

Appealing to the Supreme Court, the four said their protest rights, protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution, cannot be restricted except by a law that defines with precision the kind of conduct that is illegal.

Breach-of-the-peace is a common law in Kentucky.

form policy for the United States government, or any government, from crowds on the street."

Nixon himself had nothing to say publicly about the demonstration. He went to a football game Sunday after having spent rally day in the White House, conducting official business and watching a televised football match.

Mitchell, contending the gathering had not been peaceful, pointed to two clashes between police and a militant fringe group of the antiwar protesters. Near the South Vietnamese Embassy Friday night, and at the Justice Department Saturday after the rally, the police used tear gas to rout the several thousand militants.

A total of about 130 persons were arrested in the two days—only two in connection with the main march and rally. Most were charged with disorderly conduct and released on posting collateral. No serious injuries were reported, and damage appeared limited to several dozen broken windows.

Mitchell, in a statement delivered to news offices as the last stragglers were hitching rides out of the capital and workmen were cleaning up Sunday, said he was "pleased that the great majority of participants obeyed the law."

"Unfortunately, the planned demonstrations were marred by such extensive physical injury, property damage and street confrontations that I do not believe that, overall, the gathering here can be characterized as peaceful," he said.

The department had hesitated for weeks in granting a parade permit for the main march down Pennsylvania Avenue. Intelligence reports, it said, told of impending violence by militant groups that endangered the capital.

Although a brief rally was held there Saturday, there were no reports of violence. The Justice Department confrontation was three blocks away.

The Vietnam Moratorium Committee, meanwhile, began planning for its December activities. Sources within the committee said it was tentatively planning to observe at least one December moratorium day on Christmas Eve.

Don't Cream at Night

If you're a night-cream applier, think twice. Night creams are spread all over the face and, since most women have combination skin, one cream can't possibly be good for the entire face. If you check your pillow in the morning, you'll discover that most of the cream is there—not on your face. Any cream that's not on the pillow, is probably in your hair. Use facials and moisturizers in the morning, in the evening, any time in-between, but not overnight.

Start Hand Care Early

Now is the time to start concentrating on hand care. Keep hands soft with hand lotion in the morning, at night and during the day. Preventive hand care will keep your hands looking soft and smooth all winter.

HELEN HELP US!

GROUNDS FOR ANTI-TRUST PETITION

Dear Helen: I always knew our daughter was spoiled—what could I do when her Dad gave her everything? But this is too much! She's been married three years. Her husband gets jobs, but loses them. They say it's hard luck. I say it's hard-headedness plus no ambition. Last month Diane asked to borrow our credit cards as she needed clothes for the baby and couldn't pay cash "until Johnny gets the first check from his new job." She brought the cards back a week later—and today I got the bills!

Not only were there baby clothes charged, but a new washer and dryer, a color TV, clothes from men's and women's wear. And this may not be everything. When I read the riot act to Diane, she couldn't quite remember all she'd bought at different stores. Then she wept all over her Dad, who caved in again.

Well, my slow burn has finally come to a boil. I insisted Diane and John sign a promissory note for repayment of all debts, plus interest, with a time limit. Now I'm considered grasping and selfish. My husband says "Forget it—they're our flesh and blood." Should I? —HAD IT! Dear Had It: Stand by your guns. You should have done it long ago!

When responsibility was passed around, Diane must have been out fishing—money from her pushover Dad. —H.

Dear Helen: A friend was recently divorced after a long marriage. Her husband found someone younger and, of course, it was a shattering experience. I listened patiently to her moaning and misery, from the minute she "found them out" to the final decree, but Helen, this woman is driving me insane. She has no young children as I have and she's constantly calling up and inviting herself over, even for meals. If she doesn't phone, she just pops in, whether I have company or not. Then she gabs on and on about her unfaithful husband. For her, there's no other subject. Self-pity done up with whines, that's her!

My husband is furious. He says "lose her," but I can't be that cruel. How can I get it across that it's time she forgot the past and stopped boring people to death with it? —MRS. RELUCTANT EARS

Dear Mrs. R.E.: Why don't you tell this gal that tears only water down a friendship. Somebody has to —H.

Dear Helen: I have almost always agreed with you until now. You advised a young mother to earn her own money (through at-home jobs such as baby sitting) because "it's better than fighting with a chintzy husband."

If this man can afford $20 to $50 for sports, he can afford to give her and his child proper clothing. No woman should be treated as a financial idiot, a subservient doormat. She should lay it on the line to her husband—either he loosens the purse strings and makes it "our" not "my" money, or she clears out. He'll probably be begging her to come back.

"Frustrated" should never have allowed this situation to exist, and she certainly shouldn't give in to his stinginess by getting a job! —FOR WISE BUDGET-ING

Dear All of You Who Disagreed with my answer to "Frustrated": (There were many!)

You're absolutely right! Chintzy husbands should reform. Wives shouldn't allow such stinginess. But wives of chintzy husbands could spend a lifetime running on the "reform" ticket, for such men seldom change.

My proposed solution wasn't ideal—just realistic.—H.

Television and Fellowship Speaker Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK AP — Last week it was an entire evening of variety and comedy specials. This week NBC will offer two original dramas back to back on Friday night.

It's all part of the network's new scheduling gimmick which it calls "Multi-Special Nights." A 90-minute "Hall of Fame" suspense tale, "The File on Devlin," will be followed by an hour-long "On Stage" production of "Mirror, Mirror, Off the Wall."

In past seasons, a "Hall of Fame" or an "On Stage" production was set in the network schedule like a rare jewel. They are the prized and prestigious dramatic series of NBC, never before put together in one economy-sized package. Even more unusual, both productions are on the light side.

George Schafer, who produced and directed many of the old "Hall of Fame" shows, produced and directed "The File on Devlin." It stars Dame Judith Anderson and David McCallum. "We tried to do a take-out on the spy melodrama, and we're playing it in the spirit of camp," Schafer said. "I like actors and I like television and I think it is easier to sustain drama in it. We're all locked up together for three intensive weeks of rehearsal and shooting. Then that's it. It's not at all like doing motion pictures in little pieces."

"Wall" is a David Shaw comedy about a failing writer who turns out a dirty best-seller under a nom de plume with, hopefully, hilarious results in his private life. George C. Scott and Maureen Stapleton star in this one.

The three networks went all out, as usual, in their coverage of Friday's Apollo 12 launching, starting hours before blast-off and staying with it afterwards.

Since the public has watched so many previous launchings and so much of the coverage consists of simulations, animations, interviews and only an occasional glimpse of the departing astronauts and the rocket on its pad, it does seem that the time has come when the TV coverage could be reduced. Coverage of the upcoming moon exploration is, of course, something else.

Perhaps the networks, having started this extensive coverage, don't quite know how to back away gracefully. Except for the awesome sights of the blast-off itself, the proceedings can be followed just as well on the radio. And the radio coverage by the networks was as well organized and learned as that of television.

Arkadelphia Next Foe of Bobcats

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Scoring whenever they felt like it, the Hope Bobcats ranked the arch-rival Nashville Scrappers 42-0 at the Bobcats' Homecoming last Friday night in Hammons Stadium.

On a night with temperatures dropping below the freezing point (it was 25 degrees at game's end) Hope was invincible in all phases of the game. The offense rolled up 379 yards total offense, while the 4-AA leading defensive crew held the Scrappers to only 26 yards in all.

The game's first break, a 12-yard punt by Nashville's Randy Walston, gave the Bobcats possession at the Scraper 41. Artis Martin and Gary Jones ran it down to the 12, where a 4th and five situation developed.

On a gamble, Massanelli fired a TD strike to flanker Roger Newton at the back of the end zone, and Ronny Brown's kick made it 7-0 after seven minutes of play.

Several plays later Bobcat tackle covered a bobble at the Nashville 26, and Massanelli proceeded to hit Artis Martin over the middle for the score on first down. Brown kicked it to 14-0 and 3:55 still remained in the opening period.

An interception by safety Sidney Waller and a fumble recovery by Calvin Willis set up the two second-quarter touchdowns. The first one came on a five-yard pass from Massanelli to end David Still, and then Gary Jones bulled across from the one to make it 23-0 at halftime.

Another Massanelli-to-Still connection, this one for 19 yards, climaxed a 67-yard march in the third quarter with the fifth touchdown. Brown's conversion made 35-0 with 5:19 left in the third frame, and the reserves began seeing more action.

Midway in the final segment the starters were given one last go, and they went 78 yards for the final tally, all on the ground. Newton, Jones, and Martin mixed the running duties but the last two yards went to Artis Martin for his 15th touchdown of the season.

Hope doesn't usually beat Nashville 42-0, or vice versa, but this time it was a confident and capable Bobcat team merely overpowering an out-sized, out-manned Scraper team.

Artis Martin, who has played in nine of the 11 games, ran 155 yards on 26 trips to increase his season total to 1179 yards. Jones also was effective in gaining 71, and Roger Newton tallied 47 more. Ronny Briggs made 12 yards on five runs to lead Nashville.

So now, finally, we can think about Arkadelphia. The Badgers are 10-0 after stomping Camden Lincoln 61-20 last Friday, and they are the easy favorites to close out the 1969 campaign as 4-AA West Champions. We'll see about that.

Hope is now 9-2 with four straight victories, and the Cats hold the psychological advantages as the underdogs and because Arkadelphia has many fewer seniors than the Cats' 14. That's a difference, because the last high school game is an emotional one.

You would think that Hope's preparation, despite all the build-up, will be low-key. This is in remembrance of the Fairview 29-0 defeat the Bobcats suffered after their best week of work-outs, before or since.

Twelve weeks is a long season in anybody's book, and there is factor that after so long one can tire slightly from the weekly grind. This could work more against Arkadelphia, because they have more starters who will return next year while the seniors know this is it.

Last year the Badgers were in the position Hope is this year, the darkhorse coming up with a good record, Arkadelphia was 8-3 and beat a lethargic Hope team 6-0 to send the Cats to a 4-7-1 season.

Whatever comes of it, everyone should realize by now that Friday's showdown will not only put the top two all-around teams in 4-AA West, but in all of 4-AA itself.

Rams Win But It Was No Romp

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Philadelphia Eagles 10, Los Angeles Rams 7. Somebody must be kidding.

But that's what the score was at the end of the first half Sunday in what was supposed to be a Ram romp.

Turns out, it wasn't really the Rams in that first half, according to Coach George Allen. The real Rams came out in the second half, see, and went on to butt the Birds, 23-17, in the National Football League contest. "We were not playing our game in the first half... we were lethargic and outplayed," said Allen. "In the second half we woke up and began to play Ram football."

The victory just about wrapped up the Coastal Division title for Los Angeles. The Rams now are 9-0 and have a four-game lead over Baltimore, 5-4, which lost a 20-17 heart-breaker to San Francisco Sunday.

Minnesota, behind Fred Corcoran's golden toe, booted Green Bay, 9-7, to take a stranglehold on the Central Division race; Dallas thrashed Washington, 41-28, behind Calvin Hill's mercurial dashes to strengthen its Capitol Division lead; and Cleveland slammed Pittsburgh, 24-3, behind Bill Nelsen, to stay atop the Century group in other key games.

Elsewhere, Atlanta clawed Chicago 48-31, New Orleans upended New York, 25-24, and Detroit blanked St. Louis, 20-0.

In the American Football League, Buffalo thumped Miami, 28-3; Kansas City clipped New York, 34-16; Boston whipped Cincinnati, 25-14; Oakland topped San Diego 21-16, and Houston and Denver fought to a 20-20 tie.

With gifted quarterback Roman Gabriel having one of his better years for the Rams and Philadelphia quarterback Norm Snead reported lame, Los Angeles was supposed to have a soft touch.

Only nobody told fired-up Philadelphia in the first half. "They (the Eagles) are a considerably improved football team and one certainly to be reckoned with in several years," said Allen. But he admitted he was not too worried about the first half score.

It was another game in the second half, however, as the Rams' defense galvanized and shut down a bunch of Eagles. Los Angeles defenders, led by safety Ed Mearns' fumble recovery and pass interception, scored or set up 16 last half points as the Rams galloped back.

San Francisco topped Baltimore for the second time this season, and the setback just about ruined the Colts' chances of defending their league crown. The 49ers won it in the final two minutes on John Brodie's 18-yard touchdown pass to rookie Jim Thomas.

Cox kicked field goals of 10, 12 and 20 yards as the Vikings buried the Pack.

"If you're going to get big field goals, there's only one way to be—real close," Cox said. "They had the balls right there for me," Cox said of the center, Mike Tingelhoff, and the holder, Paul Krause. "They had them right on the money and if I can get a good look at the ball, I should be able to make it."

Hill, that man from Yale, rolled up 150 yards and scored two touchdowns in leading Dallas' victory over Washington. Hill, however, wasn't taking any bows.

"Unless you're a natural like Gale Sayres, you learn each year," he said. "I'm learning to run inside. I'm cutting better."

Sugar Bowl to Take Hogs or Texas

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer
No, Ohio State won't go to the Super Bowl, but the rest of the post-season college football picture will be decided today and this is what it should look like:

Notre Dame, relenting after 44 years, to the Cotton Bowl against the Southwest Conference champion, which will be the winner of the Dec. 6 Texas-Arkansas game; the Texas-Arkansas loser to the Sugar Bowl against Mississippi; Penn State and Missouri in the Orange Bowl and Florida-Tennessee in the Gator Bowl.

Toledo and Davidson are set for the Tangerine Bowl and the four other major post-season attractions will have to grab what they can get. The Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl probably will come up with Houston and Louisiana State while West Virginia seems set for the Liberty Bowl.

The five remaining berths in the Liberty, Peach and Sun Bowls will come from among Auburn, Nebraska, Memphis State, North Texas State, Florida State, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Arizona State.

The Rose Bowl, of course, takes the winner of Saturday's Southern California-UCLA battle and a representative of the Big Ten, probably Michigan.

However, the Wolverines must face mighty Ohio State in their regular season windup and the top-ranked Buckeyes dealt a blow to Purdue's Rose Bowl hopes over the weekend with a 42-14 trouncing of the 10th-ranked Bollermakers. Under Big Ten rules, Ohio State cannot go back to the Rose Bowl this season.

The athletic directors of the Big Ten schools do the voting for the conference's representative in Pasadena.

Ohio State took its anger out on Purdue, rolling up a 28-7 halftime lead and limiting the heralded Mike Phipps to 19 completions in 45 attempts with five interceptions. Rex Kern, the Buckeyes' quarterback, scored twice and passed for a third touchdown while halfback Leo Hayden broke loose for 130 yards in 14 carries.

"They've got it all," said Coach Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue, who became a Buckeye believer. "There's no defense better unless it's the Minnesota Vikings." Second-ranked Texas also found a supporter in Fred Taylor of Texas Christian after a 69-7 slaughter of the Horned Frogs, the most points Texas has ever scored against an SWC opponent and TCU's worst conference defeat.

The 62-point margin of victory matched the 62-0 drubbing Ohio State handed TCU back in September.

"I said Ohio State had the best material we ever played against," Taylor recalled, "but after playing Texas... gone, they've got a lot of good ones. The only way to compare them is to have them play each other."

Third-ranked Tennessee lost its first game of the season—and a probable Orange Bowl bid—when Mississippi shocked the Vols 38-0. Archie Manning, the Rebels' quarterback, scored one touchdown and passed for another and Randy Reed recovered a fumble in the end zone as Ole Miss struck for three first-period TDs.

Manning's name and fame are what probably will get the 6-3 Rebels to the Sugar Bowl unless Gov. John McKeithen of Louisiana, a rabid LSU fan, puts unsurmountable pressure on the selection committee on behalf of the once-beaten Tiggers.

Bill Burnett scored three times for a school career record of 192 points as fourth-ranked Arkansas struggled past Southern Methodist 28-15. Penn State, No. 5, put on its most impressive performance, a 48-0 rout of Maryland with Charlie Pittman scoring three TDs.

Sunday night, the Mittity Lions voted overwhelmingly for a return trip to the Orange Bowl, where they nipped Kansas 15-14 a year ago. Their likely opponent is eighth-ranked Missouri, which blasted Iowa State 40-13 as Terry McMillan passed for three touchdowns and a record 14 for the season.

Sixth-ranked Southern Cal and No. 7 UCLA warmed up for their Rose Bowl showdown... and almost got cooled off by their Rose Bowl showdown...

The Trojans needed Ron Ayala's tie-breaking 31-yard field goal and an insurance touchdown by Clarence Davis to turn back winless Washington 16-7 while the Bruins halted two late Oregon threats with interceptions and edged the Ducks 13-10.

Georgia Tech came word from Ed "Moose" Krause, the athletic director, that "if we get a bowl bid, I would present it to the athletic board and I think they would accept it."

Notre Dame's only bowl appearance was a 27-10 Rose Bowl triumph over Stanford in 1925, but the word is the school could use the $300,000 or so from such an appearance to install artificial turf in its stadium.

Elsewhere, 11th-ranked Auburn overpowered 16th-ranked Georgia 16-3 and LSU, No. 12, buried Mississippi State 61-6.

Jim Plunkett set three Pacific-8 season records in a 47-34 victory for 13th-ranked Stanford over the Air Force, No. 20.

Michigan, No. 14, piled up 673 yards in a 51-6 rout of Iowa and pass-happy John Reeves scored for the first time in 15th-ranked Florida's 31-8 romp over Kentucky.

Nebraska, ranked 17th, held off Kansas State 10-7 and, Houston, tied with Mississippi for 18th, rolled over North Carolina State 34-13.

South Carolina captured its first Atlantic Coast Conference title by beating Wake Forest 24-6.

Notre Dame Takes Bid to Cotton Bowl

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame accepted a bid today to play either Texas or Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas on New Year's Day.

The decision, reversing Notre Dame's policy against post-season football, sends the Irish to their first bowl appearance since the fabled Four Horsemen team defeated Stanford and Ernie Nevers 27-10 in the 1925 Rose Bowl.

The announcement was made by the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of the university and chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics.

Father Joyce pointed out that "bowl-connected activities of the football team will fall largely on vacation time." Notre Dame's Christmas vacation runs from Dec. 16 to Jan. 5.

Hogs Gamble Twice, One Pays Good

By HARRY KING

Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas gambling on fourth down, twice.

The usually conservative Frank Broyles did just that in Saturday's 28-15 victory over SMU.

The first time was at mid-field. The fourth-ranked Razorbacks, facing a fourth and inches, were trailing 3-0.

Broyles, seeing an opportunity to give Arkansas momentum kept punter Cary Stockell on the sidelines. Quarterback Bill Montgomery followed guard Jerry Dossey and tackle Mike Kelson for the first down and the Razorbacks went on from there to a touchdown.

The second decision was not as successful. The Razorbacks, leading 21-15, raced fourth and one at the SMU two early in the fourth period. Montgomery kept outside but was knocked down short of the first down.

"Everybody on our side wanted to kick a field goal, except me," Broyles said. "We had a 21-15 lead. If we didn't score, I wanted to give SMU 98 yards to go."

"I didn't want to give it to them on the 20 if we missed the field goal or on a kickoff if we made it," he said.

Arkansas forced the Mustangs to punt and then proceeded to put the game away.

Arkansas, after gaining a first down, punted and Stockell's kick bounced out of bounds at the SMU one. On second down a quarterback Chuck Hixson fired a pass which was deflected by line-backer Mike Boschetti and intercepted by monster man Bobby Field at the SMU nine.

Tailback Bill Burnett scored his third of three touchdowns on a first down, dragging a would-be tackler the final five yards. The touchdowns gave Burnett 32 in less than two years and his 192 points snapp-ed the scoring record of 185 set by George Cole in 1925-27.

Gordon McNulty rushed Hixson into after throwing a wide open Gary Hammond in the end zone and the Mustangs were forced to settle for a field goal when a touchdown would have meant much more.

Hixson completed 26 of 39 passes, but Broyles praised the defensive unit. The 26 completions netted only 196 yards, an average of slightly more than seven yards a completion.

The 196 yards was Hixson's lowest total in two years, except for his 145 yards against TCU, when he attempted only 22 passes.

Broyles announced that full-back Bruce Maxwell, who had another fine day with 97 yards rushing, had suffered a pulled cartilage in his ribs and that his status for the Thanksgiving Day game with Texas Tech was undecided.

After Tech comes the Dec. 6, showdown with Texas, but Broyles doesn't think the Razorbacks will be looking ahead. "We're within one game of our goal," he said.

Intercollegiate Conference.

The AIC will consider the request at its business meeting next month. AM&N has been a member of the powerful Southwest Athletic Conference for several years.

Johnson refused to comment further on the move.

"I think any other statements concerning it should come from our president," Johnson said.

Delayed Race Replay in One Respect

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The second half of the rain-delayed 200-mile Bobby Ball Memorial Race was a replay of the first in one respect: Al Unser all the way.

However, unlike the 83 wreck-marred laps on Saturday, only two of the 117 Sunday laps were run with the caution flag.

Despite the delays, Unser set a race record of 110.179 miles per hour in winning the $10,320 first prize. Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., finished half a lap behind, with Wally Dallenbach, East Brunswick, N. J., third.

Unser, from Albuquerque, N. M., led all but six laps and could have been the leader from start to finish. He said he thought he was getting carried away a little bit, and backed off to let Ruby pass.

"I had to drop back and think things over before getting back in the groove again," he said. The win put Unser 75 points back of his brother, Bobby, in the U. S. Auto Club championship standings with the Rex Mays 300 at Riverside yet to go.

Bobby Unser, A. J. Foyt and Mario Andretti were among the drivers who had to retire following wrecks, Saturday, when a light rain forced postponement of the nationally televised race.

Art Pollard, Medford, Ore., lost a right front wheel on the 94th lap, bringing Sunday's only caution flag. Defending champion Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., put the pressure on Unser early in Sunday's race, but was forced out with a burned piston.

Fifteen of the 26 starters finished.

Chiefs Storm Past Super Bowl Champs

By MIKE BRYSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
"I had a pain out there today," said Otis Taylor, nursing his self-inflicted punctured ribs. The New York Jets also had a pain Sunday—Taylor.

The burly Kansas City receiver shook off the agony of those punctured ribs to haul in two Len Dawson touchdown passes—he already had one TD reception before his accident—as the Chiefs stormed past the Super Bowl champions 34-16 before a record American Football League crowd of 63,849 at Shea Stadium.

The seventh straight triumph for the Chiefs, now 9-1, enabled them to maintain their half-game lead over Oakland, which rallied late to escape San Diego 21-16, heading into next Sunday's showdown between the Western Division powers.

Boston turned back Cincinnati 25-14. Buffalo routed Miami 28-3 and Denver tied Houston 20-20 in other AFL activity.

In the National Football League, San Francisco edged Baltimore 20-17. Atlanta ripped Chicago 48-31. Cleveland topped Pittsburgh 24-3. Dallas rolled over Washington 41-28. Los Angeles clipped Philadelphia 23-17. Minnesota slipped past Green Bay 9-7. New Orleans nipped New York 25-24 and Detroit blanked St. Louis 20-0.

JUDY CROOM, Southwest Arkansas Junior Miss.

"Tomorrow belongs to those who plan for it today," was the quotation Mike Kelly stressed when he talked to the Hope B&PW Club Thursday night, November 13 in a dinner meeting at the Diamond. Public Housing and Urban Renewal, 1968-1969, was the topic he discussed with maps to illustrate his message. "We now have 140 units of low income housing with 65 other buildings in the program in Hope," he said. It came as a surprise to many to hear that the Housing Authority is a city function, but all agreed that it provides a safe, sound, secure place to live for people of low income. After telling of the general neighborhood renewal plan for 1,293 acres in Hope, the speaker answered questions from the members. A charter member of the Hope B&PW Club and a former president of it, Jean Laseter of Hot Springs, paid a brief visit to the meeting. The Southwest Arkansas Junior Miss, Judy Croom, was a dinner guest and spoke briefly about the honor she had received. President Mary Andrews had charge of the business meeting, and Dolores McBride urged the 30 present to take the Defensive Driving Course being offered in December by the Agricultural Extension Service in co-operation with the police department and county educational, governmental, and service organizations.

Harding Is Defeated by Arkansas Tech

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With one week to go, it's a new race in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference.

Arkansas Tech the defending champion, rudely exploded Harding's bubble Saturday night 28-22 at Russellville.

The loss was the first of the season for the Bisons and dropped them into a tie with Henderson for the conference lead, both at 4-1. Henderson, sparked by Tommy Hart, remained in the race with a 20-15 victory over State College of Arkansas.

Tech has finished conference play at 4-1 and could grab the title if Henderson and Harding should lose next week.

Henderson faces crosstown rival Ouachita and Harding plays SCA, a team it has not beaten since resuming football in 1959.

In other action Saturday, Southern State scored its first conference victory of the season, upsetting Ouachita 21-14. Arkansas A&M, winless in the conference, whipped Mississippi College 33-14.

Larry Brown and Phil Fisher scored two touchdowns each as Tech got off to a 28-8 lead over Harding. Charles Caffey scored twice in the fourth period, once on a 10-yard pass from Jerry Copeland, and as the Bisons

East Met West and It Was Not Close

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
East met West in the American Basketball Association Sunday night and it wasn't even close. The Indiana Pacers, leaders in the Eastern Division, beat the Los Angeles Stars 129-113 and unseated the Stars from sole possession of first place in the West.

The Stars dropped into a tie for the lead with Washington and New Orleans as Bob Netolicky poured in a career high 43 points for the Pacers.

In other ABA games, Washington gained a tie for the Western lead by beating the New York Nets 121-117. Miami crushed Carolina 139-107 and Denver edged Dallas 89-87.

In Saturday's games, Kentucky beat Indiana 115-111. Miami crushed Pittsburgh 135-115 and New Orleans edged Dallas 101-98.

In the National Basketball Association Sunday, Atlanta beat Phoenix 139-118. Los Angeles whipped Philadelphia 138-125 and Milwaukee defeated San Francisco 129-123 in overtime.

Netolicky scored 17 of his points in the second period when the Packers, defending ABA champions, took a 58-50 halftime lead.

Larry Brown plunked in four free throws in the last seven seconds to win it for Washington after the Nets had tied the game 115-115 with 55 seconds left to play.

The Nets led 59-52 at halftime with help from Roy Taylor, the 7-foot-1 rook center who scored 10 points and got six rebounds in the space of three minutes. But Taylor's heroics were not enough as the Nets absorbed their eighth straight loss.

The suddenly hot Miami Floridians used accurate field goal shooting for their second straight victory after 10 losses in 11 games. Don Freeman led Miami's scoring with 26 points. Despite 26 points by Doug Moe, the Cougars were unable to catch the Floridians, who had built an 18-point halftime lead.

rallied. The Wonder Boys snuffed out the Bisons' last chance when they recovered an onside kick with about one minute left in the game.

Hart scored twice on runs of five and four yards to spark the Reddies. His second touchdown came with 1:09 left in the game and capped a 55-yard drive. Mike Lally's 25-yard scoring pass to Randy Crowell and two-point conversion keeper had given SCA a 15-14 lead with less than 10 minutes left.

Mike Reeder raced 30 yards for a touchdown with an intercepted pass that gave Southern State its victory. The touchdown came early in the fourth period. Barry Bennett passed for both Ouachita touchdowns.

Goalies Could Have Used a Little Help

The defenseman needed no defense around the National Hockey League today. But because of them, a couple of goalies could use a little help.

Doston's spectacular Bobby Orr increased his NHL scoring lead Sunday night by assisting on four Bruins' goals in a 7-4 romp over Los Angeles. The four points gave Orr 29 for the season and kept him in front of the scoring race—a spot usually reserved for the hot-shooting forwards around the league.

In New York, defenseman Arnie Brown ripped two goals, assisted on a third and the Rangers dropped St. Louis 4-2 for their fifth straight victory. In Sunday's only other game, Stan Mikita scored with less than three minutes to play, giving Chicago a 1-0 victory over Montreal.

In Saturday's action, New York dominated Boston 6-5. Montreal edged St. Louis 3-2. Chicago tripped Oakland 3-2. Toronto dropped Philadelphia 4-2. Pittsburgh defeated Los Angeles 3-1 and Detroit battled Minnesota to a 2-2 standoff.

No defenseman has ever won an NHL scoring title and, because of the nature of their work, it's doubtful that one ever will. But Boston's Orr is beginning to make overtures.

Bobby set a record for blueliners with 64 points last season and already has almost half that total in only 16 games this season.

Orr set up three Bruins' goals in the second period as Noston blitzed LA goalie Gerry Desjardins and broke open a scoreless game. Fred Stanfield had two of the goals for Boston.

Brown enjoyed his second two-goal night of the season, leading the Rangers past St. Louis. The victory combined with Montreal's loss at Chicago, moved New York into first place in the NHL's East Division, one point ahead of the Canadiens.

Retiring? Then Consider 32-Cent Movies, Dime Beer

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Would retirement look more attractive if movie admission averaged 32 cents, bakery rolls sold for one cent each, a bottle of good beer cost a dime and the services of a live-in maid $24 to $40 a month?

These are a few of the reasons, cited by a just-published guide book, why U.S. retirees in growing numbers are heading for the border. Across it, in neighboring Mexico, prices such as the above mean, for one thing, that retirement incomes can be stretched to cover more of the amenities of life.

Even more important, though, is the stability of purchasing power. There has been relatively little erosion by inflation in Mexico, of the fixed incomes that most retirees live on. In recent years, inflation has been held to 2 per cent or less.

"Invest and Retire in Mexico," by Sidney T. Wise, also points out that Mexico's economy is especially attractive to retirees who need maximum investment income. Savings placed in one-year time deposits pay interest of 10 to 11 per cent. Tax-free Mexican government bonds yield 9 per cent. Blue-chip stocks carry high yields—12.6 per cent currently, for example, for "Telefonos," Mexico's equivalent of our A. T. & T.

Put the two together, and you have "leverage in retirement." Instead of the dwindling purchasing power he has faced in the United States, the retiree in Mexico has been able to count on fixed investment income of 10 to 13 per cent, offset by only 2 per cent inflation. Instead of falling behind, he's pulling ahead.

Then there's the cost of living: "You can live in a kind of pampered home comfort, with a maid and cook, on a budget 20 to 35 per cent less than you'd spend in the U.S. without such servants." It all adds up to nearly twice as much "real money," or purchasing power, from a given amount of investment capital.

Wise, an American journalist and financial editor who has now lived in Mexico for about seven years, has produced a 96-page paperback that's somewhat different from the usual retirement guide book. It's about evenly divided between the sort of information one expects to find in such a book, and some pretty detailed financial advice of the kind you might not expect.

Want to know how to get a U.S. automobile delivered to you in Mexico, for approximately what it costs a dealer back in the United States? Wise tells you such things along with his judicious and temperate advice on investing your money in Mexico.

There's also a refreshing absence of the hard sell. The author, in fact, is careful to warn the impetuous away: "Whatever you do, don't retire in Mexico just because it is cheaper . . . to some people Mexico has no allure at all. Do not invest in or retire to Mexico blindly. Day-dreams can be dangerous."

"Invest and Retire in Mexico" by Sidney T. Wise is published by Carl D. Ross, Inversiones Alba, S.A., Reforma 336, Mexico 6 D.F. Price, postpaid to U.S. address, $2.50.

health food. And his home is in a part of town that is decidedly middle-class.

Yet hundreds of people pay thousands of dollars to hear Cossman talk, and listen to his get-rich-modern-quick suggestions, at "A Seminar for Future Millionaires." His lectures take him this fall to cities such as Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Miami.

The gist of his message is this: It is easier now than ever before to become a millionaire.

"I started 20 years ago, with $300," Cossman says. "I'm no brighter or better educated than the other guy. I barely made it through high school. But I found out a few things."

And the "few things" he found out, he shares—in a book called, "How I Made $1,000,000 in Mail Order." He has peddled, via the mails, toy guns which shoot potato pellets and ant farms and shrunken heads.

Cossman says that 80 per cent of the products which we will all be using 10 years from now haven't been invented yet. This constant parade of new inventions and new products means that there is always room for the novel and the idea man. But he also suggests this "idea man" sell his products to one of the large mail-order houses and let it do the work.

He says that the average man works from Jan. 1 to the middle of May, each year, to pay his taxes. So he suggests getting a tax break by starting "a kitchen table business"—making or distributing something at home—which immediately qualifies you for some major tax deductions.

He likes to point out that the government, besides giving a just-starting entrepreneur tax breaks, is ready to help in other ways. He's written a book called "How to Get $50,000 Worth of Services Free, Each Year, From the U.S. Government." And he points out, for example, the work of SCORE.

This is a function of the Small Business Administration. The acronym stands for Service Corps of Retired Executives, and these men will lend you their time and experience for up to eight weeks—at no cost—to help you get your business rolling.

"With all this," he says, "it has never been easier to become a millionaire than it is today."

Good luck.

Ohio State Just Keeps Rolling Along

By WILL GRIMLEY
AP Special Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)

The box score favored Ohio State's Rex Kern over Purdue's Mike Phipps in their eyeball-to-eyeball duel for Heisman Trophy, but the question was left hanging today.

How much impact should a single game have on the selection of college football's outstanding player of the year?

"You have to look at it from the standpoint of support," said Jack Mollenkopf, the Purdue coach. "We had some good football players out there, Ohio state had tons of them."

Kern was director and triggerman in an awesome 446-yard attack that gave the No. 1 ranked Buckeyes a 42-14 victory over Purdue Saturday in a nationally televised game that extended Ohio State's winning incomplete and will be announced by Hicks Funeral Home, Inc.

streak to 22 games.

His counterpart on the opposing team was Phipps, a rangy sharpshooter whose 2,324 yards and responsibility for 26 touchdowns made him college football's individual offense leader. Everyone took for granted—although it's not necessarily so—that the man who came out on top in this particular game would have the inside track for the Heisman Trophy, the sport's most coveted award.

Kern, a squirming, slashing, ball-faking Houdini, gained 57 yards on the ground in 20 carries and completed six of 13 passes for 104 yards. He ran for two touchdowns and passed for a third. With the score 42-7, he watched the last period from the sidelines.

Phipps, harassed throughout the day by Ohio State's lightning quick defenders, hit on only 19 of 45 passes for 203 yards but did most of his damage including a 47-yard bomb that set up the second touchdown—late in the game after the Buckeyes had called off the dogs.

He had five passes intercepted—almost half his season's total—and lost seven yards in the six times he kept the ball.

Monday, November 17, 1969

"The Ohio State rush was so hard that I had to release the ball before I was ready on most occasions," Phipps said.

"It was the best defense I've played against."

Phipps and Kern are about as much alike as a precision rifle and a snub-nosed automatic. The effect is the same.

Phipps, 22 this week, is an industrial major from Columbus, Ind., a senior, six-foot-three, 205 pounds and smart, he is a pro-style quarterback who has smashed all Purdue offense records.

Kern is a junior, but already has shattered the career records set at Ohio State by Howard "Hopalong" Cassidy.

A 6-foot, 180 pounder from Lancaster, Ohio, he has the speed of a halfback and the power of a fullback.

"The difference in the two men," said Larry Smith, assistant Michigan coach who scouted the game, "is that Phipps is a pro-style quarterback who fades back, gets set and pops the ball at the target. When he has a shot he can kill you."

"Kern is a typical college quarterback—a scrapper, fiery, who can both run and pass. You have to say he's great."

Censorship No Answer—But Elections Are

The words of Herbert Klein, director of communications for the White House this week-end in castigating television network commentators for unfairness should be taken as a mere advisory, neither a threat nor an implication of a threat of censorship—absolutely forbidden by the constitution of this republic.

I do think, however, there was provocation for Mr. Klein's outburst, just as the speech of Vice-President Agnew which triggered it, was a priceless indictment of a handful of men attempting to form the opinion of 200 million Americans.

The average citizen resents this because while both TV and the press are carriers of factual news and personal opinion there is a vast difference between the two media.

Newspapers are numbered by the thousands, and their varying opinions might reasonably be said to be a cross-section of American thinking; but there are only three commercial TV networks, and almost any opinion from such a source confronts the public with the threat of a communicative power greater than that of the people's duly-elected government.

Also, whatever the disclaimer, I do think President Nixon had a hand in writing Agnew's speech and in directing Klein's subsequent remarks. You don't have to have a long memory to recall that following his razor-edge defeat by Mr. Kennedy in the 1960 presidential election Mr. Nixon made a sharp denunciation of both the electronic and press media as being unfair. What Mr. Nixon thought in 1960 I believe he still thinks today—nor do I blame him.

All over America there is a feeling that network television and some metropolitan newspapers have been captured by ultra-liberals and even radicals, palming off propaganda that is largely agitative and foreign to the American way of life. Television is particularly vulnerable to this charge, for it deals largely with pictures—and somehow the cameras are more often trained sympathetically upon the mob than upon those who are trying to maintain law and order.

But censorship is no answer. Press and television alike must bend backward to allow the voice of peaceful dissent to be read and seen.

Government can not dictate what TV shall show, any more than it can dictate what the newspapers shall print. The public wouldn't stand for it—and wisely so.

In the last analysis the average American would tolerate today's abuses rather than resort to censorship. Today we have to endure over-emphasis on radical issues—but the public can eventually sort out the truth from the lies. Under censorship you wouldn't have that choice—because you wouldn't get factual news and couldn't distinguish between truth and falsehood.

What, then, is the remedy? It is provided by the constitutional procedure of our republic. The regulatory agencies and the courts which review their rulings are alike appointed by the federal government. The head of government is the President.

If you think radicals are over-running America the way to stem the tide is to change Presidents. I think Nixon was elected on precisely that thought by the people. Censorship isn't at issue. But some of the radical critics who liked things better in the pre-Nixon days will bear watching—whether in TV, the press, or in the privileged class known as office-holders.

Two Escapees Apprehended

SHERIDAN, Ark. (AP) — Two women escapees from Cummins Prison Farm were apprehended Saturday night at a Smith service station after they had been reported missing from their barracks earlier in the day.

The two women were identified as Louise Loyd, 35, of Plumerville, serving a 15-year sentence from Pope County for bank robbery, and Linda Ann Brown, 38, of North Little Rock, serving an eight-year sentence from Pulaski County for second-degree murder.

Bombers Cross I Cambod

By GEORGE ES
Associated Press

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. bombers crossed the Cambodian border today for the second day of strikes against North Vietnamese artillery positions in the Bu Prang Special Forces camp on the South Vietnamese side of the border.

The U.S. Command said the air and artillery strikes against the gun positions in Cambodia, which began Sunday, were "an inherent right of self-defense against enemy attacks."

The American bombers returned to Cambodia's skies after a two-hour North Vietnamese artillery bombardment early today against a South Vietnamese task force headquarters a mile southeast of Bu Prang.

Ten South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded, but the results of the retaliatory air strike were not immediately reported.

South Vietnamese infantrymen clashed twice later in the day with North Vietnamese soldiers southeast of Bu Prang. Nine enemy soldiers were killed, and there were no South Vietnamese casualties, spokesmen said.

On Sunday, American fighter-bombers streaked across the border near Bu Prang to attack 85mm and 105mm artillery and 37mm antiaircraft guns.

The U.S. Command said the artillery had fired more than 100 rounds at the camp, 110 miles northeast of Saigon, while the antiaircraft guns had forced down a small American observation plane.

The command said the raiders destroyed two North Vietnamese guns and silenced the others.

During the night, about 20 B52 bombers dropped some 600 tons of bombs on other North Vietnamese targets less than two miles inside South Vietnam between Bu Prang and Duc Lap.

Says Agnew Criticism of TV Raises a Very Legitimate Question

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's criticism of network television coverage raises "a legitimate question," but one that should be debated within the industry, says a spokesman for President Nixon.

But should the industry fail to scrutinize itself, said Herbert G. Klein, "you do invite the government to come in. I'd like not to see that happen."

Klein, a former newspaper editor and now Nixon's director of communications, appeared on the CBS radio-television program "Face the Nation." Meanwhile, a top Republican leader was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Agnew's Des Moines, Iowa, speech last Thursday "brought out the issue that to a degree television isn't always objective. 'You aren't. And it isn't your role to be,' Scott told his interviewers. 'I think he has asked everybody in the country to look at television and compare it with the press and say to television that we hope you will give us the straight news... but when you're editorializing say so.'"

Scott also said he would op-

S. Vietnam Village Chief Claims U.S. Killed 460 Civilians

SAIGON (AP) — The province chief of Quang Ngai province said today that villagers told him 460 Vietnamese civilians were killed during an American military operation in March 1968, but he said he had no firm evidence they were executed by American troops.

Two soldiers, a lieutenant and a staff sergeant, have been arrested in connection with the alleged massacre on March 16, 1968, at Song My village, six miles northeast of Quang Ngai city.

Newsweek magazine and the New York Times reported Sunday, however, that eyewitnesses said 50 or more soldiers were involved. They said the villagers were herded together, their homes destroyed, and then they were mowed down by GI gunmen.

The province chief, Col. Ton That Khien, said in a telephone interview that three months after the operation by the U.S. American Division, villagers "cried that the Americans killed them when they went through the village and made contact with the Viet Cong and they opened fire."

Asked if he believed the villagers were telling the truth, he said: "I think there is some truth but there is also an exaggeration of it. Maybe they exaggerated because of Viet Cong propaganda, because it is a Viet Cong hamlet and the people have been trained by the Communists. The people are guided by the Viet Cong."

Khien said American and Vietnamese investigators from Saigon visited his area about a year ago and discussed the incident. He said the investigators "could not go into the hamlet because it was still in Viet Cong control."

Newsweek said the case of the lieutenant accused of murdering noncombatants "was only one of a string of related incidents in which a total of 567 South Vietnamese in three separate hamlets were slain."

"According to eyewitnesses in Quang Ngai, 40 to 50 American soldiers were implicated in the killings," Newsweek said, identifying the witnesses as civilians who escaped death by hiding beneath piles of corpses.

The New York Times, in today's editions, carried a dispatch from Truong An, South Vietnam, relating the same tale and reporting about 60 soldiers implicated.

A Defense Department spokesman in Washington said there would be no comment on the Newsweek report.

The U.S. Command in Saigon, in a report issued March 16, 1968, said two companies of the American Division's 11th Infantry Brigade killed 128 enemy soldiers at a coastal village six miles northeast of Quang Ngai City.

He accused the organizing New Mobilization Committee of failing to heed Justice Department warnings of potential violence.

"That's a lie," New Mobe project director Ron Young retorted when told of Mitchell's statement. "Yesterday, thousands of people were gassed in Washington by this government. Yesterday, hundreds of people were killed in Vietnam by this government. Yesterday, villages were destroyed in Vietnam by this government."

"Eight hundred thousand came and left this city with only 150 arrests and very few injuries."

Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson had estimated 250,000 demonstrators turned out Saturday. But he said that estimate was modest.

Herbert G. Klein, who speaks for President Nixon, said although the demonstration "again proves that this is a country which allows people to express themselves, I don't think there's a value in trying to pose any attempt by government to censor the news. The vice president was accused by some network officials of advocating news censorship when he said: 'Perhaps it is time that the networks were made more responsible to the views of the nation and more responsible to the people they serve.'"

Agnew, however, said he was not proposing government censorship.

NBC board chairman Walter D. Scott said in New York Sunday he did not interpret Agnew's speech as a call for censorship, but for "restrictions we don't agree with."

"Implicit in the vice president's speech was a call for restrictions on the ability to conduct journalistic enterprise, the NBC chief said.

Moon Walkers Take TV Tour of Spacecraft

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — America's Apollo 12 explorers swept into the grip of lunar gravity today as the good ship Yankee Clipper hurtled unerringly toward a Monday night orbit of the moon.

Their target, a shimmering silver crescent, loomed larger and larger as their home planet shrank in the distance.

At 8:38 a.m., astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean zipped through a so-called "twilight zone" in which the gravitational influence of the earth and moon is equal.

Once across this invisible line, lunar gravity took hold and Apollo 12's speed accelerated after slowing to about 1,500 miles an hour on the long outward coast. The ship was 211,322 miles from earth and 38,933 miles from the moon.

The speed will increase to about 5,700 miles an hour as the astronauts loop behind the moon's backside tonight. At 10:47 p.m. they are to fire Yankee Clipper's big engine to whip into lunar orbit.

The spacemen were asleep as they entered the lunar sphere of influence. They retired at 7:15 a.m. for a 10-hour rest period after Conrad and Bean inspected the cabin of the lunar landing craft for 45 minutes and reported it in excellent condition. A scheduled eight-hour rest period was extended to 10 hours when the near-perfect flight allowed an afternoon midcourse change to be canceled.

They will attempt to steer the lander, called Intrepid, to a pinpoint landing in a 400-foot-wide circle on the moon's Ocean of Storms early Wednesday to open a new era of discovery, the first detailed exploration of the lunar surface.

Conrad and Bean carried along a television camera to transmit live color pictures of their transfer through a three-foot connecting tunnel into the cabin of the fragile, four-legged vehicle.

The only advice they sought from the ground was whether they could eat tuna fish salad from a can that had been opened the day before.

After consulting doctors and others, mission control told them: "The majority says throw it away. There's a minority report that says everybody can eat it except Dick Gordon."

The trio slept most of Sunday, adjusting their sleep cycle to prepare for the lunar surface activities, most of which are to occur in the early morning hours.

U.S., Soviet Envoys Meet in Finland for Arms Race Discussion

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet envoys met today to begin preparations for arms limitation talks, and President Nixon told his delegation he hopes for a halt to the nuclear arms race and eventually its reversal.

"You are embarking upon one of the most momentous negotiations ever entrusted to an American delegation," Nixon said in a special message read by chief U.S. negotiator Gerard C. Smith at the opening of the talks first proposed by President Lyndon B. Johnson three years ago.

Nixon declared a curb on the missile race would help both the United States and the Soviet Union without damaging their legitimate defense needs.

"Today... you will begin what all of your fellow citizens in the United States, and I believe, all people throughout the world, profoundly hope will be a sustained effort not only to limit the buildup of strategic forces but to reverse it."

"We seek no unilateral advantage. Nor do we seek arrangements which could be prejudicial to the interests of third parties."

Nixon said it is possible that both powers can carry out their defense responsibilities "under a mutually acceptable limitation and eventual reduction of our strategic arsenals."

Chief Soviet negotiator Vladimir S. Semenov and Ahti Karjalainen, foreign minister of the host Finnish government, joined in voicing support for the talks.

The setting was a 145-year-old mansion in downtown Helsinki where the Russian governors general lived when Finland was part of the Czarist empire. Now it is used for government entertainment.

After the speechmaking under television lights in a chandeliered yellow room, the diplomats were to have a short private session in an adjacent blue room adorned with mirrors and classical paintings.

The serious business begins Tuesday when the six-man Soviet delegation and the U.S. team of four negotiators, plus advisers and interpreters, hold their first secret meeting in a guarded room at the American embassy.

Woman Killed at Lewisville

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two persons lost their lives in traffic accidents on Arkansas highways, according to an Associated Press count that began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

State Police identified the victims as Earnest L. Purifoy, 18, of Bluff City (Nevada County) and Cora Brazell, 45, of near Lewisville (Lafayette County).

Officers said Purifoy was killed Saturday night in a two-vehicle crash on Arkansas 24 about six and one-half miles west of Camden.

Authorities said Cora Brazell was killed Sunday morning when she lost control of her car and it overturned one-fourth mile north of Lewisville on Arkansas 29.

Conviction of Students Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court issued an order today indicating it was about to review its position on obscenity—but two and a half hours later the court announced it had made a mistake.

The court announced first that it would hear an appeal from a Watertown, N.Y., grocery and sundry store operator, Louis Carlos, who was convicted of selling girlie magazines.

Later the court issued a new order saying without explanation, that the earlier order was revoked. A court spokesman said the switch was the result of an error but would not elaborate.

Putting the Carlos case on the calendar for argument would have been a major step since in similar cases in the past the court has summarily reversed convictions without going through a formal hearing.

The case remains pending before the court, which could later reject the appeal, overturn the conviction or set a hearing. Setting a hearing would give the court a chance to say more on the obscenity question, one of the most controversial issues currently before the courts.

This was the third slip-up by the court this term. In October the court announced it had taken on an Alabama criminal case, then said it had made a mistake and dismissed the case the following week.

Later in October the court announced it had taken on a draft case but said at the end of the day it was an error. It has done nothing about the case since.

In other actions today, the court:

— Let stand the conviction of four University of Kentucky student protesters who blocked a university office in which the Defense Intelligence Agency was holding recruiting interviews.

— Agreed to consider whether firms that are victims of illegal secondary boycotts may push their complaints in federal courts without the help of the National Labor Relations Board.

THE WELL CHILD
Infant's Cold Remedies Need Checking by Doctor
By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Even when he is but a few hours old, your infant can catch a cold. About 70 per cent of all illnesses in children under one year of age are colds. At that age, he can't express his complaints in words. Instead, he is likely to gag on whatever food or liquid is offered to him because he can't breathe through his mouth and swallow at the same time. Furthermore, he may be more restless than usual and sneeze frequently.
The cold remedies you give the rest of the family may be harmful for an infant, so check with your doctor before you give them to him. It is best, when your baby has a cold, to depart from the usual feeding schedule and give him smaller feedings more frequently.
Middle ear and mastoid infections are much more likely to follow a cold in an infant than in an older child. They can often be prevented by using nose drops of phenylephrine (pediatric strength), which will help to keep the eustachian tubes open.
If your baby's appetite improves and he seems to be sleeping better, this is an indication that he is able to breathe more comfortably and his cold is clearing up.
A mother should take special precautions against getting her baby's cold or spreading it to other members of the family. For this reason, she should wash her hands often, especially after handling the baby. Preferably, she should use a soap that contains hexachlorophene.
Q—Please tell your readers about the necessity for children to get fresh air and sunshine.
A—These are changing times. There is no doubt that children need some sunshine every day to prevent rickets but it is important to remember that as little exposure to direct sunlight as 10 minutes a day between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. will supply that need and that the child must be protected from overexposure. Since there will be pushing snowflakes around, or if it is to be stored until Spring. Next, your engine's carburetor should be checked and adjusted.
Now you're ready to rest comfortably, assured you have done the right thing... protected your investment and peace of mind.

Jim: "As a youngster, I have always taken your stories about how good the old-timers were with a grain of salt. In particular, I never really believed that Helen Sobel Smith would be the greatest woman bridge player as long as she appeared at the table. Then she came back from retirement to play with Minda Brachman and the Jacobs in the Life Masters Mixed Team of 1968. I saw her results when she played with you and I must agree there has never been a woman player like her. Why don't you take the rest of the column and the rest of the week, to tell our readers about her?"
Oswald: "Helen was Goren's partner and, as such, my opponent. While she was a tough opponent, she was also a dear friend. After marrying Stan Smith in 1966, she retired from play for over two years. When she wanted to play in another tournament, she called me because Charley was totally retired while I was only partially so. Needless to say, I was delighted to play with her and, since it was a team event, we got you and Minda to play with us."
"The player most like her was the late Hal Sims. Hal was a great believer in the 'tell them nothing' school. A typical Hal Sims slam was one spade—six spades. Helen felt the same way. She must have made more unbelievable games and slams than anyone by leaving the science to others and trusting her table judgment."
"Another thing about her game was that she did not fear criticism. If one of her stabs went wrong, she would simply try again later. Usually she overbid, but on today's hand she went the other way. You remember it, don't you?"
Jim: "I sure do. Against us, North kept the bidding alive a second time with two no-trump and South jumped to four spades. Down one!"
Oswald: "I would have done the same. My two-club opening was artificial and forcing, and Helen just decided to gamble that there was no game."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS
The World Almanac says that San Marino, located atop a mountain on the Italian mainland, is the world's oldest existing republic. Founded in A.D. 350 by the stonemason, St. Marinus, it has existed as a sovereign state since the 9th century. Age has done nothing to increase its size, however, as San Marino also remains the world's smallest republic, extending over a mere 23.4 square miles.

'Neurotic' Nita's Waterfall Foams
By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)
Here to do a week of his late-night, great night shows on CBS, Merv Griffin relaxed in a bungalow at the Beverly Hills Hotel and got a load off his mind.
It had been reported that Lucille Ball said some unkind things about Merv. This bothered him and he has been searching his memory, trying to figure out what he had done to offend her.
"There may be two things," Merv says. "One involves her husband, Gary Morton. We were good friends when we were both traveling with Freddy Martin's orchestra. A little while ago, I ran into him for the first time in years, and we fell over each other."
"I was so happy to see him that I didn't notice Lucy there, and she may have been miffed that I overlooked her."
"The other reason, perhaps, is Arthur Treacher. Lucy and Arthur have been friends since she was 16. She may resent the way I talk to him on my show. We sass each other pretty good. But that's the way he wants it."
Lee Meriwether is a Girl Scout troop leader, among many other things. She was off with her troop on an overnight trip, camping in the Angeles National Forest.
Suddenly, the girls heard a strange buzzing sound at the campground. Lee heard it, too, and said, "If I didn't know better, I'd swear that was a telephone."
They searched and, near one tent, found the sound coming from a black box. They opened it up—and it was a telephone. And there was a call for Lee from her agent, who had been trying to track her down all weekend to tell her to report early Monday for a part on The Name of the Game.
Letter to Frederick Brisson, producing "The Unexpected Mrs. Pollifax," starring his wife, Rosalind Russell:
"Dear Sir:
"We understand you are using two flags of the Albanian People's Republic as decoration for the set where you are filming your motion picture. This is an unauthorized use of our national emblem. We ask the two flags be returned to the Albanian government."
It was signed by Sadedin Ali, undersecretary of Albania's U.N. delegation in New York. Since the flags had been made in a Hollywood set studio, Brisson ignored the letter completely.
I've always felt that, if I was a producer, I'd find a good script for Nita Talbot and she'd become a star and I'd become rich. She is loaded with talent and other things.
But the breaks haven't come her way. She has just come through a couple of years you wouldn't believe. Last year, she only did one thing—a Gomer Pyle—and that was it.
"For awhile I thought it was a plot," Nita says. "But why? I'm not political—I never joined anything—and I'm not difficult. A little neurotic, sure, but not difficult."
But suddenly things broke better. She did a two-parter with Debbie Reynolds. She had a juicy role on a World Premiere at Universal called "The Movie Murders." And she's about to start a film at Fox.
Meanwhile, she has her waterfall. Other girls can have pools, but Nita has a waterfall.
"I thought it would be easier to keep than a pool," she says. "But it foams, and I have to get a certain spray to keep it from foaming. Did you ever go into a store and ask for a can of spray to keep your waterfall from foaming? It isn't easy, believe me."

Two Stars and Over 30 but He's Trusted by the Troops

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

CU CHI, South Vietnam—(NEA)—The United States Army in Vietnam is now made up in large part by active members of the never-trust-anyone-over-30 generation.

And it shows. The gap between young and old here—that is, subordinates and superiors—has never been wider.

Many young privates feel their commanders are an assortment of dummies who think modernism means changing underwear every day. Many veterans, on the other hand, wish some of the newer men would indeed change underwear every day.

Some enlisted men say that GI morale is dipping dangerously. The reason is that the military leadership's lack of participation in "the new world" is antagonizing a and alienating much of the rank and file.

However, many career officers and NCOs don't agree that a communications crisis is building. They admit the modern soldier asserts his individualism more than generations before, but they insist men today, as men always, are generally satisfied.

In this school of thought is Harris W. Hollis, commanding general of the 25th Infantry Division.

Says he resolutely: "Well, I may not have as much personal contact with my men as I'd like but I think their morale is very good indeed."

Hollis, two stars and 20 years over 30, is no dodo. Nor is he a fabricator. He bases his assessments of how his men feel by "several broad indicators," such as combat efficiency and citation statistics. Both get high marks in the 25th Division.

Hollis says the men may be grumbling, but as long as their performance is good their morale can't be bad.

Harris Hollis is a 27-year Army veteran, and this is the 12th month of his third war. He took command of the 25th by design, rather than computer. He was commanding general of the 9th Infantry before it was withdrawn from the war. And, despite the fact there is a long list of generals wrestling for field commands here, Hollis was selected because of merit.

He's all general; no argument there. Slender, stony-faced, short bristles of graying hair. He lives "in the best hootch in Cu Chi," as the GIs say. He wears patent leather combat boots and he eats from real plates. But as much as any private in his ranks, he earns his pay by putting in long days of frustrating, difficult war-time labor.

Moreover, he isn't entirely concerned with the big picture. The little snapshots actually take up more time. Even the grumblers in his command admit he makes a particular point of getting out everywhere to see his men.

And most of the men he sees, even the mods, he likes. He says he's not opposed to the outspokenness of today's GI. Not as long as the soldier continues to get the job done.

His views: "I think we all have to recognize that the Army is getting more and more people of diverse outlook. And I think everyone is entitled to his own opinion—as long as it's not counterproductive. I think I understand young people somewhat. I have two of my own—one in high school, the other in college. They've taught me a few things.

"What it all comes down to with a soldier is the question of leadership. My own personal feeling is that a commander should treat every man as a man, not as a child. Recognize he has rights. Recognize his need of comradeship. In sum, I think commanders should give their men their loyalty—and that way it's certain to be returned." The comments, perhaps, are a bit stiff. Maybe even slightly sentimental. But they stand for decency and fairness. So does Harris Hollis. And who says there can't be some square planks on the bridge over the Army's generation gap?

MONEY CLIPS

To date, the U.S. Mint has issued 1,649,523,438 Kennedy half-dollars for general circulation, but have you ever wondered why they make rare appearances in your daily change? There is a logical answer but not one I am too sure some politicians and columnists would be willing to accept because they would have you believe the Kennedy half is being hoarded by collectors and investors which, of course, is positively ridiculous.

Such expertise can only be based on assumption, since there is nothing remotely connected with this coin that warrants more than a proper place in the half-dollar series. Investors, on the other hand, may hold 20 or 40 only because it is more convenient to maintain a roll inventory, but certainly not for any future profit.

Through several very reliable numismatic publications, collectors and investors are constantly aware of the coin market, just as anyone interested in stocks and bonds stays abreast of the stock market by reading the Wall Street Journal. They rarely tie their money up in "probables," because the history of most "probables" proves them to be losers, and if there ever was a loser from the investment angle, it has to be the Kennedy half-dollar.

In October, only five dealers of the hundreds advertising in the six leading numismatic publications even bothered to list this coin, and three of the top pricing catalogues ignored it altogether, which should discount the theory that they are being held by collectors and investors. If they were, there would be a clamor to sell at any price, but as it is, the average value of an uncirculated specimen is $1.

It is equally ridiculous to think that over 1.6 billion coins are being held by the general public, unless you are ready to concede that it would mean each person in the United States is in possession of at least seven half-dollars. Many are being stashed away as mementoes but, on the whole, the Kennedy half-dollar is being exported almost daily.

We tend to forget that Mr. Kennedy, like Dwight Eisenhower, was an international personality admired for the most part by the middle- and lower-class citizens of every country in the world, friend or foe. And whatever reason we would have for keeping a coin of token bearing his likeness would be their reason also. But while we have been fortunate in being able to acquire Kennedy half-dollars at face value, many Europeans find it necessary to offer much more, sometimes eight to 10 times actual value.

Any Eisenhower or Apollo 11 coin will go the same route and for the same reason.

MR. REED: I sort coins taken from city parking meters and keep bent or mutilated pieces separate until there is a quantity large enough to fill one bag. Recently, the bank has been trying to refuse these coins and I would like to know if they can refuse them legally.

PAUL: I think this is a matter of bank policy and not one of legal nature. I do know that recent legislation has made it a practice to redeem worn and mutilated coins on a weight basis,

JACK POSTS GIVE SAGGY FLOORS A LIFT

By MR. FIX

Sagging floors are a problem that can hit almost any house. Girders weaken with age. Posts may not have been properly located in the first place. Heavy appliances and furniture may be too much for the original supports. Remodeling may have added new strain or taken away old support.

There are any number of reasons why the problem may occur. The important thing is to remedy the problem just as soon as possible while correction is still easy and before damage becomes extensive.

The job is a simple one requiring no skill, just patience.

The thing to do is provide new or additional support and to raise the sagging floor at the same time. Both matters are taken care of with an item known as a jack post, available at most hardware stores and lumber yards.

The jack post is a combination adjustable floor jack and steel column. It is made up of two steel tubes that telescope inside each other. The inside tube has a series of holes so that you rather than on a per piece basis, and I suggest you write or contact your nearest Federal Reserve Bank for a ruling.

can lock it at any height by inserting a steel pin.

There is a base plate on which to rest the post and a top plate which rests against the underside of the girder. Between the top plate and the post there is an adjusting screw to raise or lower the top plate.

To install, place the base plate on the floor where you plan to put up the post. Put together the two sections of the post so that you get the top plate as close to the overhead girder as possible. Fix the column in that position with a steel pin in one of the holes and then adjust the screw so that the top plate is tight against the girder.

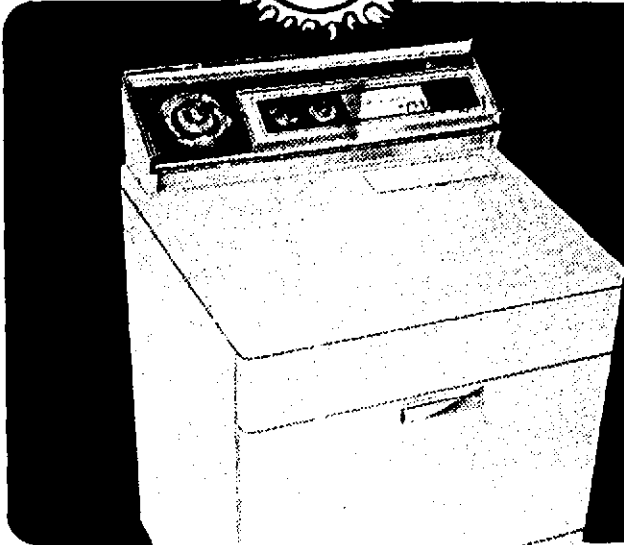

Do not overtighten. Further adjustment must be made very, very slowly. About a half-turn on the adjusting screw each week is plenty. Going up too quickly could cause more damage such as cracks in frame, walls and plaster.

A sound cement floor in your basement is a good enough base. However, if the floor is cracked or extremely thin, you should provide a special base. Make a hole in the floor about two feet square. Go down about a foot. Fill with concrete mix and allow to dry for at least a week before installing the post.

The birthday of Will Rogers, Nov. 4, is a public holiday in Oklahoma.

Hot Stove League Opens With Tall Fishing Tales

By JIM CROSSLEY

These are nominated as the three best fish stories for 1969.

Fishing from the Seven-Mile Bridge at Pigeon Key near Marathon, Fla., was very good this particular night. Everyone in the party of four was pulling out snappers, yellowtails and grunts at a great rate. Everyone, that is, except Elwood Milligan of West Hollywood, Fla.

"They were razzing me about my failure to even get a bite," Milligan tells it. "I was bombarded with loud instructions—drop the line all the way, then reel in a couple of cranks and all that."

"Finally they began feeling sorry for me and investigated, flashing a light down under the bridge. We discovered there was an old boat down there and I had been dropping down, hitting it and cranking back a couple of turns—fishing in midair all evening."

Bob Burch of the Tennessee Game and Fish Commission says flatly that fisher-lightest fly rods and flimsiest tippet leaders.

Ready to quit, Bob started his outboard. It hit something and sheared a pin. The "something" was a 25-pound drum. The fish was lying there stunned.

They had no net so Bob slipped the starter rope around like a lasso just when the fish came to life. They captured it in a scene more related to rodeo steer roping than to catching a fish.

"Back at the dock," as Bob tells it, "spectators oohed and aghed and wondered at the size of our lightweight fishing gear. We just kept our mouths shut and by doing so told the biggest fishing lie of our careers."

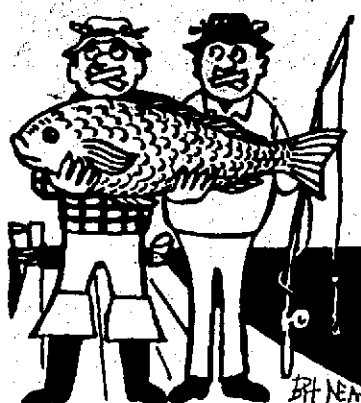

This third yarn got in circulation from Portland, Ore. J. C. Todd, while salmon fishing, had a sea gull grab his bait and hook. By accident, the rod was jerked out of the boat and was heavy enough to sink, taking the bird under with it.

Todd unlimbered a second rod and the story here turns into similar ones that many fishermen tell. He hooked a salmon which got tangled with the line on the other rod. He recovered the lost tackle with the impetuous sea gull still attached.

Experiments to Be Made by Moon Men

By JIM STROTHMAN

AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Could storms of radiation particles from the sun, constantly blowing through space, be exploited someday to rid earth of its growing air pollution problem?

Is the moon a cold, rock-like asteroid or is it like earth—hot and molten inside and solid on the crust?

Does the moon tremble from within, and does it perhaps have a very thin atmosphere of particles created by decomposing lunar material?

Answers to these mysteries, and others, could be revealed by a $25 million array of scientific experiments to be set up Wednesday on the moon's Ocean of Storms.

Far more elaborate than the two experiments left by the Apollo 11 astronauts last July, Apollo 12's scientific bundle consists of five instruments to be powered by a nuclear electric generator, the first atomic generator ever carried on a manned space flight.

Called ALSEP, for Advanced Lunar Surface Experiments Package, the array is expected to beam data to earth for at least one year and perhaps two. It includes:

— A seismometer almost identical to one carried on Apollo 11 to register moonquakes, meteor impacts and rockslides down crater walls. Data from the device could tell scientists much about the moon's internal structure—whether it's hard like a rock all the way through, has a molten inner core like earth or is a broken-up structure without a pattern.

— A lunar ionosphere detector, which will study charged gas particles created when Apollo 12's landing craft blasts off from the moon—detecting the rate the gases dissipate and thus evaluate the moon's ability to retain an atmosphere.

Some scientists believe solar radiation storms constantly blowing through space would rapidly strip away any atmosphere on the moon, carrying the particles to points beyond the solar system. They have suggested it might be possible to exploit this to help eliminate air pollution on earth.

The idea—looking into the distant future—would be to put pollution forming industries on the lunar surface, reserving earth as a healthy place to live.

— A magnetometer to detect and measure lunar magnetic fields generated by those same solar storms sweeping by the moon. The intensity of the magnetic field depends on the moon's internal temperature, scientists say, so data from the device should give researchers a better idea on how hot the moon's interior actually is.

— Solar wind spectrometer to analyze what particles are in those radiation storms. Data from the instrument will help scientists better understand potential hazards to space travelers.

— Lunar atmosphere detector to study any gas particles created by decomposing lunar material. The device could provide new information on the possible presence of volcanoes on the moon and help scientists better understand what chemical materials are in the lunar soil.

Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. left two instruments on the moon's Sea of Tranquility, 860 miles east of Apollo 12's target.

The seismometer ceased functioning after 21 days but during that time heard some rumbling signals which scientists believe originated either from a volcano or a meteor impact, the sound

A Pinpoint Landing Is Predicted

By BILL STOCKTON

AP Science Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 12 commander Charles Conrad's parking lot on the Ocean of Storms is 400 feet wide. On the moon, that's a pinpoint.

Just landing Apollo 11 safely in July was good enough. But geologists want future missions to go to the more interesting, but much rougher, lunar highlands.

Future astronauts and guidance systems must bring each lunar module to a precise landing or else abort the mission to point.

If Conrad and Alan L. Bean can ride their lunar lander Intrepid to this site, they will assure future safe landings in rugged moon terrain where a small error could ruin the mission.

After studying Apollo 11 data, engineers said a combination of factors, when added together, caused the down-range landing. Apollo 12's descent and landing procedures have been modified to eliminate the factors.

A point about 1,000 feet from Surveyor 3, which landed April 19, 1967, was the original target avoid damage to the spacecraft. Apollo 11 missed its mark by almost four miles. Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. accomplished a safe landing of their craft, Eagle, after assuming manual control and steering away from a rock-filled crater.

Conrad hopes to park Intrepid in a smooth, level spot near the unmanned spacecraft, which is squatting on the side of a 600-foot wide crater.

The Apollo 12 landing site is farther west than Tranquility Base, which means the spacecraft will be in contact with earth longer before entering the final critical moments of defor Intrepid, but space officials announced last week the site had been changed to the Surveyor 3 location to give Conrad a better view of the landing area during the final seconds of descent.

scent. Mission Control will have time to send up the latest information about Intrepid's exact position for Conrad and Bean to punch into the guidance computer.

As Intrepid nears the lunar surface, the spacecraft computer will tell Conrad where to look for landmarks. When the lander reaches an altitude of 500 feet, Conrad, while watching the lunar surface, can begin guiding the spacecraft manually.

If he is satisfied with the job the computer is doing, he can allow the guidance system to land Intrepid automatically.
